Angela Russell co-anchors KIRO 7 Eyewitness News at 5 p.m., 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. Monday through Friday alongside Steve Raible and chief meteorologist Rebecca Stevenson.

Her experience includes reporting on the major news of the day. She covered the historic 2008 presidential race, the Phillies' dramatic World Series win and issues on national security at the height of the War on Terror. She also reported on a wide variety of Congressional hearings, most notably on steroid abuse in Major League Baseball. Her interviews with injured Iraq war veterans at Walter Reed Army Medical Center showcased the consequences of the war on military personnel and their families. Angela anchored the Emmy Award-winning 4 p.m. newscast and reported for the 11 p.m. newscast at KYW-TV, the CBS-owned station in Philadelphia. She was also an anchor and reporter at WJLA-TV in Washington, D.C. and WKRG-TV in Mobile, Alabama.

She began her broadcasting career at WTMG-FM at the University of Florida in Gainesville, where she graduated with a bachelor's degree in Telecommunications News. She is a member of the National Association of Black Journalists.

Angela and her husband, Telly, have two daughters, Ava and Maya. When not reading children's books to her daughters, Angela explores subjects ranging from thought-provoking literature to inspirational biographies to the latest fiction bestseller. She also enjoys a variety of outdoor activities, especially hiking and whitewater rafting.
